

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to the reduction of artifacts introduced by sending data at a higher rate than the bandwidth of the communication channel, such 5 as the voltage and current offsets introduced in the data at the receiver as a function of the preceding data.